Filling in the gaps

That's an educator's task, says new Murray school chief

DUBLIN — The educational field has to be constantly evaluated to see if it is serving community needs, according to Dr. Jessie Kobayashi, newly elected superintendent of Murray School District.

While speaking at a Dublin Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting yesterday at Dublin Corral restaurant, Dr. Kobayashi presented some of her views on education.

One change affecting today's child is the lack of extended family living. That means there's no one like a grandmother, or similar relative, living in the home to pass along traditions and family history to children and grandchildren, Dr. Kobayashi explained.

Now, society tends to compartmentalize various age groups, she said.

There are places like Sun City for the elderly. Hardly anything is planned for total family participation, Dr. Kobayashi reminded.

This new type of family structure creates gaps in a child's upbringing. More and more these gaps that used to be filled as a family function have to be taken care of by outside agencies such as schools, the new superintendent said.

"Now more than ever, education has to provide for the child as a whole."

Dr. Kobayashi said she was looking forward to working in concert with groups to realize goals of the Murray School District.

"I am very impressed by the high caliber of the people here," she said.

The new superintendent officially takes office Aug. 8.

Did jealous husband slay SR realtor?

Sheriff's officials investigating the shotgun slaying last May of a San Ramon realtor have uncovered evidence leading them to believe the murderer was a jealous husband, according to a story in the Valley Pioneer published yesterday afternoon.

The information comes following a press release by county sheriff Harry Ramsay announcing that a $2,500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the death of Terry Giraudi, a real estate salesman, has been posted by the Southern Alameda County Board of Realtors.

Giraudi of Tri-Valley Brokers in Dublin was killed at approximately 9:30 a.m. May 4. To date, his death remains a mystery.

Giraudi was apparently lured to an isolated location at 2301 Norris Canyon Road in San Ramon by a male caller who indicated that he wanted to see Giraudi about a possible real estate listing.

When Giraudi arrived, he was shot with a 12 gauge shotgun.

A HUGE POOL OF WATER sprinkled with islands of reclaimed land is the picture drawn for some 4000 acres in the heart of this basin, once gravel extraction has been completed. This view of the quarries looks west toward Pleasanton. Stanley Boulevard runs like an isthmus between the depleted pits.

Water: Quarry byproduct for 21st century

The gravel resources buried in the heart of Amador-Livermore Valley are vital to the Bay Area's economy over the next 50 years; and when the last of that material has been extracted, local communities could wind up with a resource almost as valuable: water.

The reclamation plan prepared on behalf of four major extractors operating in this basin was delivered to a Tuesday meeting of Pleasanton business leaders. Richard Karn heads up the team of engineering consultants who drafted that plan after a year's study of land which has played a unique role in the Bay Area's economy for some 40 years. Valley gravel will continue to impact that economy through the year 2025, Karn explained.

"In 1974 there were 16.4 tons of gravel produced in the nine Bay Area counties," he reported. "This Valley produced 7.7 million tons, or 47 percent of that total."

There remains some 400 million tons of material to be extracted from that one rich source. And when the Valley's gravel pits are exhausted, "the next available source is Sacramento, and that is going to mean higher construction costs throughout the Bay Area," Karn warned.

The availability of high-grade material available just within this basin will start declining around 1990, when first Kaiser's xlands and then Rhodes & Jamieson's holdings will be mined out. South of Stanley Boulevard, Lone Star and California Rock should have resources to carry them through 2025.

It is what happens to the land after those mining operations are ended that prompted Karn's reclamation study, and that also concerns a number of local and regional agencies.

There are 4180 acres south of Interstate 580, from Martin Avenue on the west to Isabel Avenue on the east that are zoned to gravel quarrying by Alameda County. All but 475 of those acres will have been mined out by 2025, Karn explained. Other hundreds of acres will have been reclaimed to various stages of use ... providing for light industry, recreation and even a return to agriculture. But a majority of the 3600 acres will be under water.

"East Bay Regional Park District is interested in expanding its Shadown Cliffs Park south of Stanley Boulevard," Karn explains, but there is no definitive program as yet for the vast pool of water that will result north of Stanley, starting in the 1990's.

Dr. Price practicing down south

Dr. Gerald Price, the former Pleasanton general practitioner who abruptly left town this spring and turned up later in North Carolina, is back in practice there after undergoing a week's observation in a mental ward.

The doctor has sent The Times two letters — one including his telephone number, the other enclosing a clipping about him from a local newspaper.

"I will be glad to answer any and all questions from anybody," he says in a four-page handwritten letter dated June 8. He gives his phone number as (919) 552-3189. Many local ex-patients have expressed anxiety over getting their medical records from him, but Price said recently he'll mail the records for a $10 fee.

Of the newspaper article, published June 9 in the Fuquay-Varina (N.C.) Independent, Price says in a note, "I think that many people in Pleasanton will find it illuminating."

The letter concerns his arrest a month ago in Willow Springs, N.C., where he had opened a medical practice after leaving Pleasanton in April.

Water crisis not over

East Bay Municipal Utilities District water rationing has been a success, its president reports, but now comes the true test of a water cutback program.

Unseasonal rains in May made rationing easy, reports EBMUD, and in fact added to its vastly depleted water supply.

But with summer coming, the district will be faced with its sternest task.

Predictions are that if EBMUD users can hold down consumption the next four months, the upcoming fall may bring sufficient rain to ease water rationing.

Transportation needs study

The League of Women Voters has started phoning people in the Valley to conduct a Valleywide transportation survey designed to determine the general public transportation needs here.

Dee Manning, chairwoman of the Valley Transportation Committee, asked for cooperation from people, and expressed hopes of getting a 2½ per cent sampling of the population.

City cracks down on booze

The Pleasanton City Council passed an ordinance Monday night to ban drinking alcoholic beverages in public places.

The ordinance is aimed at giving the police department the authority to crack down on people who create a congestion and litter problem with public drinking on Main Street on hot summer nights.

Of course, the ordinance applies to every public place, so Vice-mayor Ken Mercer asked City Attorney Ken Scheidig whether he would be arrested if he has a beer in a public park while on a family picnic.

LIVERMORE — An age-old axiom, "The squeaky wheel gets greased," has a new and important meaning to researchers converging on the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory this week.

One hundred three members of the "Acoustic Emission Working Group" are attending a week-long conference at LLL to put an ear closer to that squeaky wheel and listen to its message. They are finding it has a lot to say.

Using sensitive sensing devices, researchers can actually hear materials emit sounds as they are placed under stress.

By refining this technique, technicians hope to one day test the strength of welds in car frames, insure a jet wing's endurance, or remove any doubt that a nuclear reactor's cooling tanks are leak-proof.

Acoustic emission is sound produced by the formation of tiny cracks within a material under stress. These cracks can grow larger and eventually cause the material to break.

Improving upon a technique invented by a European woman in 1927, technicians are able to convert these usually imperceptible sounds into a computer readout, onto an oscilloscope or into sounds easily heard by the human ear.

Clem Tatro, founder of the study group and leader of the Materials Test and Evaluation Section at LLL, says the possible safety benefits, coupled with savings in time, energy and money, make acoustic emissions research a field with a wide open future.

Current testing methods use x-rays or ultrasonic devices. These procedures require that energy be pumped into a material, so technicians can listen or see the rebounding effects.

But acoustics emission testing allows constant monitoring to take place, even as the device is in use. And its faster.

Tatro uses the sound method to test welds used to join long pieces of super-conducting wire as it is wound into a massive 215-ton magnet for the Mirror Fusion Test Facility being constructed at the Lawrence Lab.

As each weld is made it passes through a testing point. Tatro clamps the wire and puts stress on the weld while listening to its reaction. If it's silent, the weld passes. But if it "screams," a new weld is ordered.

The genial Tatro says his main goal is "technology transfer" — get the new testing procedure out of the lab and into production so all may benefit. "I see it leading into all of us living a safer life," he envisions.

Acoustic emissions testing is being conducted in some industries, such as checking spot welds on car

SR rail

Part of a transit network

A light rail transit system being proposed by CalTrans for the San Ramon Valley could be the beginning of an East Bay regional rail transit network if the energy situation continues to worsen.

The opinion is part of a report prepared by transportation consultants Carl Englund, Jr. and Son. This report will be presented in early July to the state transportation committee for use in evaluating possible state funding or an alternate form of transportation along San Ramon Valley's Southern Pacific corridor.

Southern Pacific has proposed abandonment of its service along the 20.9 mile corridor.

According to a government code stipulation, a report is required to be filed regarding other possible uses before abandonment can take place.

The report initially states that ridership on the system would fall under the minimum necessary to finance the initial cost of $33 million — excluding land acquisition. However, the study concentrates on the optimistic development of a "Starter Line" which would run between Crow

Canyon Road and Pleasant Hill.

Englund estimated the system's net losses for the first year would total $410,000. These losses follow payment of half of the system's operating expenses out of fare box revenues from an estimated one million riders during one year.

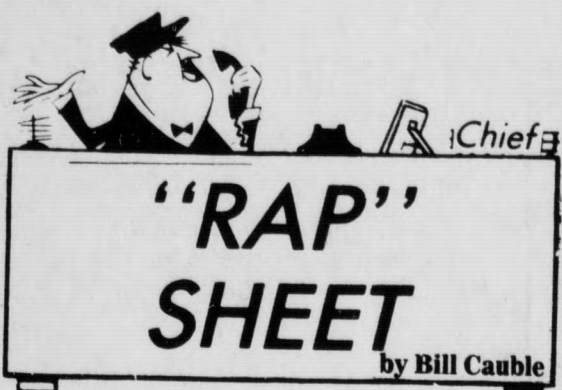

However, Englund projects that an eventual target of 70 to 75 per cent recovery of expenses can be expected to be recovered from revenues as rider volume is "spurred by energy conditions."

Envisioned in the proposed light, the rail system would be pairs of DuWag train cars. These cars are virtually noiseless, electrically run with an average speed of 50 miles per hour.

Youth arrested with weapons near golf course

LIVERMORE — Reports of a pending rumble between some high school students and a group of "cowboys" on Bluebell Avenue Saturday night led police to the arrest of a juvenile with a metal baseball bat and a pipe, officers reported.

Citizens called police and said a group of youths with pipes and hammers were standing near the Springtown golf course. One caller said the juveniles had planned to attack a group of "cowboys" nearby.

The youths fled when police arrived, dropping their weapons as they ran. Officers chased one youth across the course in their patrol car and arrested him in possession of a 36-inch pipe and a metal baseball bat.

The suspect, a 17-year-old Granada High School student, was booked on suspicion of possessing dangerous weapons.

Via Granada resident beaten, knocked unconscious

LIVERMORE — A woman standing and talking to a friend on Via Granada early Saturday was allegedly beaten by a man who then took her to the hospital for treatment, police reported.

The woman said she was talking to a friend in a car about 1 a.m. Saturday when a van pulled up and two men got out. The van's driver approached her, and after a short conversation, reportedly slugged her in the left eye. He then pushed her backwards into the street where she fell to the pavement and was knocked unconscious.

The suspect and his companion took the woman to Valley Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for a badly bruised eye and several cuts to her face.

No arrests were made.

Nine-year-old girl reports indecent exposure

LIVERMORE — A nine-year-old girl was subjected to an indecent exposure at Sixth and East streets Tuesday afternoon, police reported.

The young girl said three youths, aged 15-17 years old, whistled at her about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday. She looked to see one youth turn around and expose himself. The youths then walked away laughing, heading toward Livermore High School.

The suspect is described as about 5 foot 9 with dark brown curly hair parted in the middle.

Tapes, jacket taken from locked vehicle

LIVERMORE — Burglars pried the left wing window to a car parked on Sixth Street at South P early Tuesday and took goods valued at $200, police reported.

Al Dean Davis said he returned to his Volkswagen and found that a case containing 26 8-track tapes and a green jacket were taken. There are no suspects.

Pleasanton wins suit

PLEASANTON — Alameda County Superior Court Judge Robert Bostick ruled yesterday that Harold Kolb is not entitled to $225,000 in damages from the city in a dispute over sewer service for his property.

Kolb contended that a reimbursement agreement for an oversized pipeline installed by a neighbor was tantamount to a city promise for sewer connections in the VCSO sewage treatment plant.

But as Michael de Montaigne once said, "If you would speak with me, you must first define your terms." Acting City Manager Alan Campbell got on the witness stand and defined two very important and very different terms, "sewerage system" and "sewer system."

The "sewerage system" mentioned in the reimbursement agreement meant only sewer pipes, said Campbell. It did not mean the entire sewer system, including the VCSO sewage treatment plant and the implication that connections in that plant were assured, said Campbell. When you talk about the whole works — pipes and plant — you mean "sewerage system," said Campbell. The judge agreed about the difference of two little letters.

Kolb's attorney attacked the city on two other points, too, both successfully defended by City Attorney Ken Scheidig. Kolb's attorney is on record as stating he would appeal any adverse decision, though Scheidig believes all the points of law were upheld so thoroughly on the city's side, that Kolb may be discouraged from appealing.

Blackhawk foes take new tack

Leshner News Bureau MARTINEZ — The Friends of Mt. Diablo and the Sierra Club filed suit in Superior Court Wednesday to overturn the recent annexation of 122 acres of Danville's Blackhawk development to the Central Sanitary District.

The suit, filed by Sierra Club attorney Laurens Silver, claims the annexation was improper because of pending litigation that could force the whole 2,800-acre Blackhawk development into a special election.

"The Board of Supervisors owed a legal duty to the voters of Contra Costa County until this matter is resolved through litigation," said Silvers, "to preserve intact the subject matter of the initial referendum."

That referendum was gained in 1975, when the Friends of Mt. Diablo circulated a petition protesting the original annexation of the Blackhawk parcel to the sanitary district and gathered 26,000 signatures, enough to call a special election.

But the Board of Supervisors refused to approve that election. The petitioners took the case to Superior Court, where it was

A pliable downtown revamp

LIVERMORE — Three city agencies reviewed a revitalized central business development plan Tuesday and generally agreed with Planning Director Howard Nies' goal of flexibility for planning in the downtown area.

Main items discussed by the planning commission, design review committee and beautification committee were: shrinking the size of the designated commercial core; desirability of additional supermarkets in the same area; and a relatively undeveloped super block south of the railroad tracks between L, P and First streets.

Nies asked the planners to avoid a precise Central Area Development Plan (CADD) that could prove too rigid.

The original plan was shelved in December because of personnel shortage in the planning department and confusion by First Street merchants and property owners about an overly precise plan.

Commissioners generally agreed with Nies' desire to lop off the extreme western section of the designated downtown area from a commercial classification. The area between Stanley and Murrieta Blvds. and Fenton Avenue would be more suitable for residential or office space, they said.

Nies wants the downtown core to be reserved for a basic retail shopping area. Most planners questioned whether to use Livermore Avenue as the eastern border of retail shopping or extend it to Maple Street.

Plans for a super block were changed to show Railroad Avenue between L and P streets eventually becoming a meandering mall with no traffic. Vehicles would be re-routed along a loop adjacent to the railroad tracks to serve future commercial development on 11 separately owned parcels along the right of way.

The drawing showed no plans to infringe on existing First Street businesses to construct new parking lots — a fear expressed by merchants before the plan was shelved for six months.

The brain storming study session questioned whether the private developers would build a loop road or whether the city should, and whether or not the city should seek a unified architectural look or "theme" to new downtown development.

Neither question was resolved.

Although Nies said his staff had no objections to additional supermarkets in midtown, other appointed officials said too much traffic would be generated and a parking problem would increase.

The study group questioned current city practices of suggesting a grid pattern of landscaping in most parking lots, complaining it creates a dull and uncreative downtown.

They also discussed possibility of encouraging common usage parking lots that could be used by a day time business during normal working hours and a theater or other night spot at night.

Much of the downtown development seemed to hinge on plans of property owner Southern Pacific Railroad, which is apparently waiting to see what happens with the proposed Stoneridge Shopping Center in the west end of The Valley.

A section between the railroad tracks and Stanley Blvd., opposite Valley Memorial Hospital, had previously been slated for office space, but planners questioned if more offices were needed. They discussed possibility of slating the land for multiple residential, but noted possible noise problems there.

Getting closer

The bulldozer is getting closer and closer to the tree Elba Leonard grew from a walnut 50 years ago. Workers yesterday were laying drainage pipes where the 80-year-old man once had hedges along his front yard — right where Livermore is straightening Railroad Avenue to connect with Stanley Boulevard. Leonard still contends the city could have curved the road around the tree, which is slated to come down at an undetermined future date. The four month project started three weeks ago.

Campaign funding squak

PLEASANTON — Pleasanton Garbage Service, a quasi-public utility, donated $100 to the campaign of a San Leandro City Council hopeful, but the firm's accountant promised Monday night it won't happen again.

Council Member Joyce LeClaire raised her eyebrows when she learned that the garbage service donated $100 to the unsuccessful campaign of Al Andrade in the 1976 election.

Chuck Gielow, Jr., accountant for the garbage firm, said he talked to company owners Frank Molinaro and Tony Macchiano and impressed on them the feelings of citizens about the matter.

When they made the donation, it was meant to be out of their pockets, but they didn't discriminate it that way in their company books, said Gielow.

LeClaire noted that the garbage firm, whose rates are set by the city council and operates with a city franchise, is a quasi-public utility. It's not right for city-regulated profits to go to anyone's political campaign, said LeClaire.

"I think taxpayers here would resent knowing that their rate increase was going to a political campaign," said LeClaire.

Doctor suing 'everyone'

He had been arrested May 12 for allegedly assaulting an investigator for the North Carolina Board of Medical Examiners with a pocket knife and then allegedly hitting the investigator's car with rocks as the man drove hastily off.

According to the lengthy newspaper clipping, Price was unable to raise the $2,000 bail needed to get him out of Wake County Jail. He agreed to enter the Veterans Administration Hospital in Durham, N.C., for psychiatric evaluation.

"I spent six pleasant days shooting horseshoes and playing ping-pong," he related to an Independent reporter.

"Not surprisingly, I was found to be neither schizophrenic (as one court judge had suggested) nor neurotic."

The physician is reportedly back in practice in Willow Springs and faces the assault and damage to personal property charges in court on June 21.

He will also be tried on that date for a speeding charge and for driving without an operator's license. He had been stopped in Raleigh for allegedly driving 55 in a 45 mph zone and did not show the policeman a driver's license.

Of the upcoming court charges, Price told the Independent reporter, "All I can say is, being fairly good at hand-to-hand combat, I can assure Mr. Denny that had I actually assaulted him, he wouldn't be around to tell the tale ... I fully intend to sue everyone even remotely involved in my case in the very near future and will not rest until everyone has been successfully punished to the full extent of the law."

Of his experiences in California, he said, "The whole atmosphere there was one of social chaos. Being held incommunicado is a way of life in California."

Valley obituary

Mary Desrochers

Mary E. Desrochers, 80, a native of New Brunswick, Canada and a Pleasanton resident, died Tuesday in a local hospital.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John (Phyllis) Richer of Pleasanton and a brother, Jim McIntyre of New Brunswick, Canada.

Five grandchildren also survive. They are John Edward, Gary Victor, David, Judy and Cathy Richer.

A Mass of Christian Burial was held at St. Augustine's Catholic Church Wednesday. Interment will be June 21 at Notre Dame Des Neiges Cemetery, Montreal, Quebec, Canada.

Local arrangements were made by Graham-Hitch Mortuary, 675 St. John St., Pleasanton.

Locally, Dr. Price's California medical license is threatened by an action filed recently in Sacramento by the Board of Medical Quality Assurance. A petition has been filed for an order to compel the physician to undergo psychiatric examination in order to retain his California medical license. He is still licensed in North Carolina and reportedly intends to continue practicing in the small town of Willow Springs.

EBMUD looks four months down road

OAKLAND — Since water rationing became a fact of life four months ago for Californians living in the East Bay Municipal Utilities District (EBMUD), it has succeeded better than was originally hoped.

EBMUD board President C. R. Hitchcock said he was pleased with customer response to the crisis.

"But the summer months ahead will be the hard challenge for East Bay water customers," he continued.

"The warm dry months that face us now will be more difficult for water savings than the month of May," Hitchcock said.

"The unusually late rains in May had the double benefit of holding down water consumption to 47 per cent of normal as well as adding more water to our supply."

March consumption was 72 per cent of normal: April, 66 per cent.

"The downward trend was firmly established in the first month of rationing," Hitchcock said.

"After February 8, the day rationing began, water use fell steeply, and for the next three months EBMUD customers succeeded in doing better than water conservation goals."

Hitchcock said only about 15 per cent of EBMUD customers have requested an adjustment to their allotments for reasons of family size or hardship.

Hitchcock reported relief could come to parched California if the rainy season arrives in a normal fashion four months from now.

In addition to water savings resulting from the rationing system, EBMUD is making rapid progress on the emergency construction project in the Delta. This project will supplement East Bay water supply this fall.

"It will be a remarkable achievement to design and build the Middle River pumping plant in only half a year," Hitchcock remarked. "Normally a project this big would take at least two years."

Piles needed to support all the pumping plant structures in the Delta peatland have been driven. Concrete foundations have been poured and a power substation has been installed.

Five big pumps are scheduled for delivery in July.

"It looks like we will be able to meet our deadline to start pumping about 70 million gallons of water a day from the Delta to East Bay in September," Hitchcock declared.

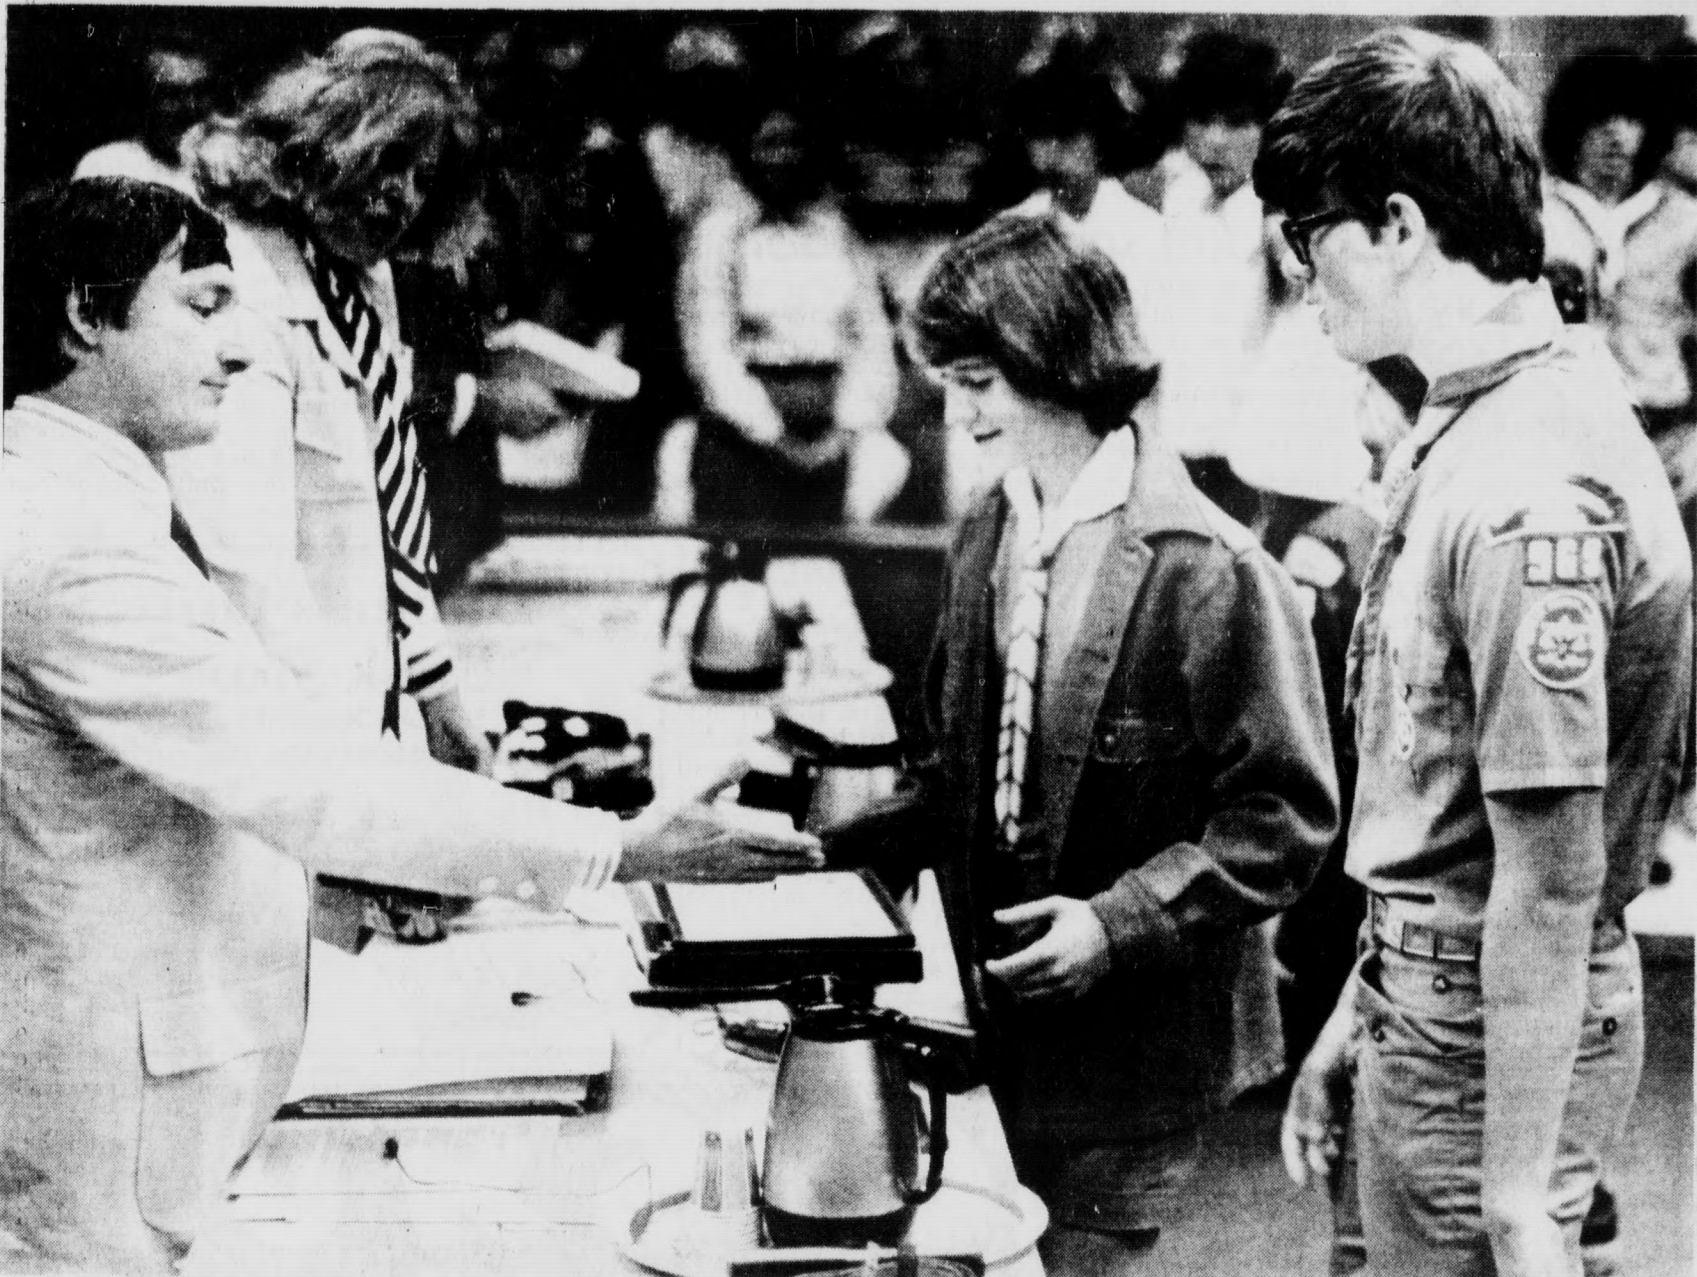

The Middle River pumping plant cost estimate is $2.1 million. This includes building and operational costs during the drought.

Additional purification systems costing about $2.5 million to build and operate are being installed at EBMUD's six filtration plants.

The additional water for the East Bay will come from EBMUD's contract with the United States Bureau of Reclamation for water from the Auburn-Folsom South Unit of the Central Valley Project.

Pipeline protest could hurt industrial, business growth

Growing opposition to that controversial sewer waste pipeline "could have serious impact" on the Valley's commercial and industrial growth, a spokesman for that sector of the community has warned.

William Hirst, president of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, called on "those who support the pipeline concept to speak out ... show your support for the two city councils and the VCSD directors who have gone on record for this thing."

Hirst advised a Tuesday noon gathering of business leaders that "this anti pipeline referendum move is getting serious," and he urged "those who don't agree with the referendum to make themselves heard too. Talk to the city council members, or write letters to the editor" he advised those who back the pipeline.

The local governing boards in Livermore, Pleasanton and Dublin all favor letting the contract for a modified version of the pipeline, after voters earlier turned down a bond issue for a larger outfall system. However Hirst noted that Pleasanton's electorate did vote in favor of that earlier pipeline concept and he argued "the city council is now responding to the peoples' needs."

City's day at the fair

LIVERMORE — July 1 has been set as Livermore Day at the county fair.

A joint committee from the Livermore Chamber of Commerce and the city governmental offices will cosponsor the day. Tickets will be available at the chamber office, 1723 Barcelona St., today through June 30. Price is $3.25, which entitles purchaser entrance to the fairgrounds, entrance to the grandstands and a reserve seat in the grandstands.

A picnic area in back of the fair's administration building will be available to ticket holders. The committee hopes to encourage Livermore families to take advantage of their "Livermore Community Day."

Livermore Community Hour will be held 2-3 p.m. in the Court of the Four Seasons.

Members of this year's Livermore Day at the Fair committee include Carol Jean Famariss, Bob Bruns, Bill Parness, Bob Rumberger, Jr., and Jack Deckert.

They meet in private

LIVERMORE — Commissioners of the Livermore Housing Authority scurried into an early Monday morning executive session to discuss personnel matters.

The press was notified the same morning and Chairperson Linda Chapman refused to comment on the substance of the meeting, which lasted more than an hour.

"We decided to have it late Friday, but we didn't know for sure what time it would be held Monday," she told The Times, "so we made calls to all the papers."

New jail

Pickets at ceremony

Leshere News Bureau MARTINEZ — With picketing jail foes watching, Sheriff Harry Ramsay and county supervisors Tuesday drove a spade into the vacant Martinez lot that is destined to be the new county jail.

Dissuaded by Supervisor Nancy Fadden of Martinez from taking a sheriff's checker cab to the site from the old jail (four blocks), the board members and other officials walked.

Board Chairman Warren Boggess called the walk a symbol of the long road the county has traveled to reach the new jail.

Preliminary work on the $21.8 million complex has begun with relocation of utility lines and diverting Pine Street around the six block site.

Final go-ahead on the detention center followed over a year of work on redesign of the project by the County Detention Facility Advisory Committee, county staff members, and several consulting firms. Earlier plans had been discarded by the board in February 1976, when it was learned the costs would exceed the $20 million budgeted for the complex.

Sheriff Ramsay assured that Contra Costa residents were getting their money's worth, adding that the new jail will be a model for others all across the nation.

Designed for a maximum of 383 prisoners, the jail features one-man cells, each with a window and outdoor recreation area alongside. The four-story structure will have a single wing containing a superior and municipal court.

The existing jail has been the target of lawsuits and Grand Jury criticism for its overcrowded and antiquated conditions.

TV violence: is it excessive?

Rick Harvey, carpenter, Livermore: "No, I dig it. The news is the most violent TV show on the air every night — why not take that off? I love 'Baretta' and 'Charlie's Angels.' They'd be boring without the violence."

Jack Stevenson, sixth grader, Pleasanton Elementary School: "Yes. 'Police Woman' and 'Police Story' have too much. But I guess I wouldn't care too much if they took it off or not."

John Ellis, sixth grader, Pleasanton Elementary School: "I like comedies like 'Happy Days,' but on other shows like 'Adam 12,' you always see people shooting each other. I don't watch too many of those kinds of shows. I don't like violence."

Jim Harvey, van customizer, Livermore: "I wouldn't watch TV if there wasn't any violence. 'Police Woman' has lots of violence, and if TV was too clean-cut, it wouldn't be exciting. There are more murders on the news."

Maryjane Pomin, visitor from Sunol: "Well, yeah, especially on the detective shows. It's been a long time since I've watched TV, but I think there's too much violence. When kids see it, they get violent too."

Susan Armstrong, mother of three, Dublin: "I think so. I'm tired of it. I don't let my kids watch real violent shows. We watch things like 'Happy Days,' 'Carol Burnett' and 'Quincy.'"

Kris Brittain, student, Amador High, Pleasanton: "No. 'Charlie's Angels' is my favorite show, and there's not too much violence in it. I really don't think TV violence affects kids that much."

Diane Brittain, mother of two, Pleasanton: "I never really watch TV. I don't like it, I don't like the violence. I think there's too much, especially for the kids."

Are kids really hurt by TV violence?

Did you know ... that in a survey of prison inmates 90 per cent said they had improved their criminal skills by watching television? That children imitate the acts of violence they see on TV?

That youth and adults who regularly view television violence are more fearful of real life? These are just a few of the findings by such diverse groups as the National Parent Teachers Assoc., the American Medical Assoc. and the International Assoc. of Chiefs of Police.

Alarmed to find "that it no longer matters what you've taught your children, because the influence of television can't be escaped," Livermore resident Sharron Bolden is helping to organize valley women to take a stance against TV violence and to improve the quality of programming.

The mother of two, Sharron will be a keynote speaker at the Woman to Woman Building the Earth for the Children's Sake June 18 symposium at Mills College in Oakland. The 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. seminar is open to all interested women for $2, and will deal with television violence.

Entitled "The Second Ark," the symposium is the second in a series of meetings for women interested in mobilizing positive power towards enhancing and preserving life for the future. Sponsored by Build the Earth, the meeting is expected to attract more than double the number of women who met first on May 14.

A recruitment of 100,000 women by June 1978 is the women's goal, and they hope to persuade everyone from housewives to top executives to join them in an informal organization — no officers or set meeting times — called Network.

Current members of Network are confident that women can alter history, and have taken their first step towards bringing about change by fighting such threats as pollution, overconsumption of our finite natural resources and violence on television.

Sharron Bolden's "Facts Talk on the Imperative" at the June 18 program will incorporate slides and statistics regarding "different forms of mind pollution with a focus on television violence," she says.

According to Dr. Robert Liebert, states Sharron, "The more violence and aggression a youngster sees on television, regardless of his age, sex or social background, the more aggressive he is likely to be in his own attitudes and behavior."

Liebert, who is the principal researcher for the study of television for the Surgeon General of the United States, also believes that it is not a child's home life or his background, but the amount of TV violence he has viewed by the age of nine, that is the single most important determinant of how aggressive he will be ten years later.

Sharron, whose children are ages eight and three, is aghast at the discoveries her fact-finding for the program have turned up. "Did you know that a child in just two hours can watch more violence on television than an adult will personally experience in his whole lifetime?" she asks.

Another survey by the American Medical Assoc. has declared that TV violence "should be an environmental health risk based on overwhelming scientific and medical evidence."

Her own children's viewing hours have been cut drastically, Sharron says, but she and her husband are still concerned that Lance and Bethany "will be subjected to other kids' aggression."

There's no "escaping the influence of others," points out Sharron. "I can't take the attitude anymore that it's okay for everyone else to do their own thing — especially if the little kid down the block watches eight hours of TV a day and might whack my son in the face."

She bases her fears on a New York nursery school's study, where the teachers asked parents to cut back on TV viewing to one hour a week — and to monitor what their children watched.

In three weeks, says Sharron, the teachers discovered that the children's desire for learning had increased as never before. "Their level of aggression had also been reduced," she adds.

The National PTA recently resolved to speak out against the powerful television industry's violent programming and the influence of the media at its 81st annual convention in Anaheim, Calif. The organization, as early as 1910, urged parents in its local units to supervise the attendance of their children at motion picture theatres and vaudeville shows.

The National PTA publication "Mass Media and the PTA" speaks of "the challenge to PTA members," noting that "the quality of programs will always be at the level that the vocal part of America wants."

In response to the growing concern of PTA members, a television commission was appointed in 1976 to look into everything from communications law to organizing public hearings across the country.

The results of the hearings included such facts from experts as good parenting becoming ineffective because of peer pressure influencing what children watch when away from home; the play of children becomes less creative and more violent as more children imitate television heroes; televised violence makes viewers less sensitive to real-life tragedy.

Many different groups, from churches to psychiatrists, all agree that by working together the public will win out against television violence.

Women interested in carpooling to the Saturday seminar may call Eileen Rinde at 443-3875 or Sharron Bolden at 443-5534.

Binkley's condos delayed

PLEASANTON — Page Binkley's efforts to build 28 condominium units on Black Avenue and Hopyard Road were slowed a bit by the city council Monday night.

Council members thought the units themselves were okay, but finally decided that Binkley will have to provide six more offstreet parking spaces to cut down the potential problem that parking on Black Avenue would pose to through traffic there.

Binkley, who already had provided three extra spaces for guest parking, will huddle with the city staff and try to "it in six more spaces.

Former mayor Robert Pearson tried to persuade the council to eliminate five units in the development which totals six buildings. Under normal ordinance requirements, Binkley would be allowed only 23 units, but the council gave him the 28 units under the Planned Unit Development ordinance. Pearson objected the extra five units will create the feared traffic congestion. He claimed the same thing happened in a similar development near his Pleasanton Meadows home.

Visitor from Georgia meets city council

PLEASANTON — Mayor Robert Philcox introduced a distinguished visitor from Georgia to the city council and audience at the council meeting Monday night.

No, it wasn't President Carter, but it was the relative of a politician. Council Member Frank Brandes' father had come from Atlanta for a family visit and saw the workings of his son's political avocation Monday night.

At 11:15 p.m., the elder Brandes asked his son, who had stepped down from the dais for a moment, whether the meeting would last another half hour.

County approves plans on new Dublin library

Alameda County Bureau OAKLAND — Preliminary architectural plans for Dublin's third and hopefully last library have been approved by county supervisors.

The decision culminates a three-year drive that began with a 25-cent tax district referendum and ended with this week's unanimous vote. Supervisors must now decide how best to finance the million-dollar library.

Berkeley architects Collins-Byrnes are the architect-builders.

But supervisors have hired financial consultants Bartles and Wells of San Francisco to map out funding.

For $13,500 the firm will lay the ground work for a non-profit corporation to build the $862,000 facility.

Supervisors earlier this year rejected the idea of borrowing from the county retirement fund, but lately have had second thoughts.

If Bartles & Wells recommends funding through the retirement fund, the board will pay the firm $1,000 and drop the non-profit corporation scheme.

Total costs, including interest on corporation bonds, are estimated at $1.2 million.

Soon the nearly 50,000 books now crammed into 6,200-square-foot on Village Parkway will float in 14,600-spacious-square-foot on Amador Valley Boulevard near Valley Bank.

The library's inventory grows by about 400 books a month, and some 2,000 books already are in storage.

Construction of the building and fully landscaped grounds will be finished in about 18 months.

Head Dublin librarian Virginia Bennett calls the financing method a "self-destruct mechanism" because the building will be long to the people in the special tax district once the debt is paid off.

Factbook tells it all

Editor's Note: Below is a letter from Chamber of Commerce President William A. Hirst.

Dear Pleasanton Resident:

I'm writing this letter to you as the President of your Chamber of Commerce. The Factbook accompanying this letter contains considerable information about your city, the services provided by it and the many industrial and commercial goods and services provided within it.

As you're no doubt aware, Pleasanton depends for a substantial portion of its tax revenues upon sales taxes generated by purchases made within the city. As a Pleasanton resident I'm sure you are interested in making your city as pleasant an environment as possible. To a considerable extent this depends upon the availability of tax revenues.

I would encourage your careful review of the Chamber of Commerce Factbook and that, when possible, you do your shopping within Pleasanton rather than in areas outside the city so that sales tax revenues generated will benefit you more directly.

I suspect that you will be surprised at how many goods and services you've been purchasing outside city limits are actually available to you right in Pleasanton. Locations are convenient with ample parking, competitive pricing and no lengthy drive and oppressive traffic congestion associated with out-of-town shopping.

I urge you to shop local and, in that way, keep tax dollars within the City of Pleasanton so that they may benefit you.

Sincerely,
William A. Hirst

Post time nears for county fair

They'll be off and running a dozen times a day for 12 days when horseracing starts June 27 at the annual Alameda County Fair.

Post time is 1:30, with racing Monday through Saturday.

This year's $695,000 in purse money will be offered via one appaloosa, two quarter-horse and nine thoroughbred races each day.

Ten special Stake Races also will be presented, including the twelfth running of the $25,000 Alameda for three year olds and up.

A $2 Exacta will be offered on the first race, and $5 Exacta on the eighth and twelfth races. The Daily Double will be run in the fourth and fifth races.

The Fair Association is also offering a "Racers Delight" of general discount admission tickets to the races. Fairgoers may buy 12 adult fair admission and 12 racing general admission tickets for $30 compared to the regular $42 tag.

General admission to the grandstand is $1.50. For another $1.50 reserved seat tickets may be purchased. Box seat tickets, when available, will sell for a total $3.50, including general grandstand admission.

Senior Citizens Day is heralded June 29, with all those 65-year-old and up, or those with a valid "Gold Card" admitted free to the fairgrounds and to the grandstand for 75-cents.

Fourteen "sellers" windows and five "cashiers" positions have been added along with a new parimutuel building annexed to the grandstand.

Fair reservations

Three advance ticket sale plans are available to folks who wish to attend Pleasanton Day at the county fair July 6. The tickets are available now at the Chamber of Commerce office, 10 Neal St., Pleasanton. Tickets for some of the plans are limited so buyers are urged to secure them early. Plan One, with a limit of 200 persons, includes reduced admission to the grounds, admission to the races on July 6 in a special area, and a ticket to a steak barbecue at 6 p.m. that day with a no-host bar. It costs $6.50. Other plans at $5 and $3.50 are also available. Call the Chamber, 846-5858, for more information. Shown here are Dawn Perry, representing Maid of Pleasanton Jori Alexander, and Chamber President Bill Hirst. (Times Photo by Mike Macor)

City eyes fire house purchase

PLEASANTON — The city has a chance to buy its firehouse in Highland Oaks and will investigate whether that will put it ahead of the game.

Schulte-Blackwell, owners of the house, have offered the leased house to the city for $68,000. Vice-mayor Ken Mercer asked the staff to see whether the city, through its public services corporation, could build a new one cheaper for the city.

The public services corporation built the current city hall and has a lease-back arrangement with the city which is economical.

Discussion about the alternatives for the fire station prompted council members to nudge the staff toward completion of a report on adding to city hall and dropping the lease on the current city council chambers and city attorney's offices.

The staff promised a report soon.

The county fair plus attendant pageantry

The fun starts at 10 a.m. sharp on the 26th, just a week from this Sunday.

But for those packing participant invitations, the Alameda County Fair Preview Party kicks off the week at 7 p.m. on Saturday.

The third annual preview party will benefit the Mulberry Branch of Children's Hospital, and offers a relaxing evening of entertainment, strolling accordionist, and champagne and hors d'oeuvres.

Further information is available from Mrs. John Noonan, 443 - 6044; Estelle Newcomb, 846 - 3776; or Mrs. Ellis, 447 - 6252.

A whopping $100,000 budgeted for attractions "promises first - class entertainment," according to the Fair Association.

The programs begin June 27 and 28 with Clay Hart and Sally Flynn, a pair of Lawrence Welk Show veterans who sing country.

The Chuck Jones Magic Act joins them.

All shows are twice daily at 7 and 9 p.m. The Fair is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Classical - jazz - rock guitarist Jose Feliciano will perform June 29 and 30, followed by comedians Skiles and Henderson July 1 and 2.

There will be no Fourth of July fireworks display this year, but The Treniers present "Instant New Year's Eve fun" when they take to the stage July 3 and 4. And country singer Freddie Fender and the Elkin Sisters entertain July 5 and 6.

John Bryner of noteworthy television fame for his comedy and impressions debuts July 7 and 8 along with Jerry Murad's Harmonicats.

And Lamb Chop and his friends — including mistress Shari Lewis — will entertain July 9 and 10.

Tickets are $2 for adults, 25-cents for children six through 15, and free for kids under five.

A Destruction Derby highlights Sunday, July 10, while horseracing is offered at 1:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday from June 26 through July 10.

Senior citizens (those over 65 or with a valid "Gold Card") can gate crash on Wednesday, June 29 with free admission. Horseracing will cost 75-cents, half the regular grandstand admission.

Family night with $1 adult admission and 25-cent for kids six through 15 is offered on June 17, 18 and 19, and July 5, 6 and 10.

And to keep the tykes occupied — when they're not ogling strolling entertainers, the animals, or just plain gawking at the fun — the fair offers land rides for 30- and 35-cents, and major rides at 40-, 50-, 60- and 75-cents.

Things open up on Kids and School Days July 6 and 7 when prices tumble to land rides at four for $1 and similar reductions on major rides.

Advance tickets may be purchased for $1.50 each in lots of one to 99, or for $1.25 each for more than 100 tickets.

Parking is available for $1, or $2 for preferred parking using gates 7 on Bernal Avenue and the Rose Avenue entrance.

Horseracing, curtailed last year by striking county employees, is back to wet the whistles of those who favor the "Sport of Kings."

And there's the Maid of Alameda County contest pitting city and community maids from around the county in a bid for reigning beauty.

Pleasanton's Julie Hemming was last year's favorite.

In all, it's the second biggest county fair in the state, shadowed, but only slightly, by the Los Angeles County Fair.

Fair crowds will line up below the grandstand to roughbred racing after last year's meet was wager on quarter horse, Appaloosa and tho- scrapped by an Alameda County employe strike

Entertainment at the fair this summer

What's that? You say you've never seen a mule jump 40 feet into a tank of water?

Where have you been? It's standard fare at the Alameda County Fair this year, along with trained collies and strolling bands, as well as the traditional livestock, photography, art work and horticulture exhibits.

Jonny Rivers Hi-Diving Mules, featuring Sue City Sue, a 16-year veteran of more than 10,000 dives, will perform daily.

Rivers, himself a 30-year veteran of animal training, found Sue's weakness by accident. But that didn't stop him.

He scanned more than 200 mules to find some with a similar bent, and now has seven mules making up three complete units.

It takes two years of training to get a mule "ready for the public."

But it's taken more than 200 years of breeding to produce Dick Harward's Working Border Collies.

Their bent isn't diving, it's herding sheep, turkeys and ducks.

The dogs originated in Scotland and are used widely in sheep grazing areas of the United States.

Harward selects the best dogs and trains them for a full year at his Oregon ranch.

He uses hand, voice and whistle commands to direct his collies.

Bob Mielke's Dixieland Band — usually referred to as the Oakland A's band — will join Werner Hirtel's "one man band," Dick Plessis' German Band and Henry Clay's Banjo Band as strolling entertainers.

And of course there's Lou Jacklich and his magic accordion at the floriculture garden.

They're right. The fair is "family fun for everyone."

Here's where the fish bite

Getting tired of the local fishing holes?

At Lake Chabot, an East Bay Regional Park District spread between San Leandro and Castro Valley, not only are there 10,000 newly planted rainbow trout and a fishing derby which commences Monday morning.

They're also giving away Zeke's floating bait every morning, along with a floating bait rig, free.

Derby fishing is from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily ending Sunday, June 26. Winners will receive rods and reels.

As has been the case for the past decade, competitors will be channeled into age groups, from "Tadpoles" (aged 4 - 8) to "Whoppers" (aged 65 - 74).

Prizes will also be awarded in various fish categories: largest black bass, catfish, crappie, carp and trout, and most carp caught in one day.

Youngsters under 16 pay a registration fee of 50 cents to cover the whole derby. Those older must hold a valid EBRPD fishing permit (usable in all EBRPD lakes including the local Shadow Cliffs and Del Valle) and a California license.

Lake Chabot Marina is at the southern end of 4,908-acre Anthony Chabot Regional Park which also features Las Cumbres Family Campground. There are picnic tables and barbecue pits around the playfields of the Marina. The Marina Restaurant, overlooking the lake, begins serving full breakfasts, hamburgers and sandwiches at 6 a.m. every day.

Future of an SR rail link

Their concept is based on a European system.

The paired cars seat 180 passengers. They are run from overhead catenaries 15 feet above tracks. The train cars are powered by transformer-rectifier substations located trackside every two miles.

In his report, Englund admits to the time consciousness of the consumer in choosing to use mass transit. He places the total commute time to San Francisco as 44 minutes including transfers.

He compares this time to the half hour commute in light traffic and a rush hour commute of possibly an hour or more.

Initially, Englund suggests the service run every 15 minutes during commuter hours from 6:45 to 8:30 a.m. and from 4:15 to 6:30 p.m.

Seven stations would service passengers. This would include stops at Greenbrook Drive, Paraiso Drive, Prospect Avenue, Del Amigo and Lunada Lane.

Fare price would be based on existing AC Transit D bus zones ranging from 25 to 50 cents. Distance traveled would determine final fare.

The magnificent Mercedes-Benz 450SEL: It's a world unto itself.

With its price of more than $24,000, it's reasonable to expect that everyone—driver and each and every passenger—should enjoy every moment spent in the Mercedes-Benz 450SEL. Everyone does.

Because within its artfully sculpted contours, the 450SEL conceals an extraordinary array of creature comforts. Yet here is one car that appeals as strongly to the intellect as it does to the senses.

The Mercedes-Benz 450SEL is the contemporary version of the classic touring car. The automotive embodiment of elegance.

To be sure, it is a driver's automobile, replete with dozens of stunningly sophisticated engineering developments. Most of them are unique to the 450SEL.

But the 450SEL is also a passenger's automobile, in which a host of biotechnological ideas have been beautifully translated into human terms. The result is pleasure...pure pleasure, whether you take the wheel or simply enjoy the ride.

Appeals to the senses

You enter the Mercedes-Benz 450SEL through doors, front or rear, that open a full 36 inches wide. Close the doors and you're wrapped in a sure, secure and satisfyingly luxurious environment. You savor satiny, premium leather—or, if it's more to your taste, rich velour. You settle into wide, anatomically correct seats, firmly sprung, whose individual suspension is actually tuned to the car's own suspension. You notice that all interior surfaces are padded and finished for safety as well as sumptuousness.

You defy the elements with a Climate Control system designed to automatically maintain the precise temperature you prefer at any setting between 65° and 85°. The system also defogs, defrosts, and dehumidifies. Twelve strategically placed vents—including front doors that actually "breathe"—assure proper ventilation in every area of the car.

You observe the world outside through an expanse of tinted glass. If you are a passenger, unobtrusively sited rear reading lamps let you read or work at night without interfering with the driver's vision. Adjustable stereo speakers bathe you in sound at the touch of a switch. You cruise even the roughest roads smoothly and with confidence, the result of the 450SEL's synergistic combination of independent suspension, 116.7-inch wheelbase and welded—not bolted—monocoque construction.

Appeals to the intellect

The 450SEL is a remarkably complete car. It comes to you with a complement of safety, performance and comfort features—as standard equipment—that is almost unheard of these days. Your Dealer

HANDLING: A Mercedes-Benz forte for decades, brought to a new standard of excellence in the 450SEL Touring Sedan.

- 23 Steel-Belted Radial Tires
- 24 Steering Lock
- 25 Tachometer/Quartz Chronometer
- 26 Tinted Glass (all around)
- 27 Velour Carpeting
- 28 Trunk Carpeting

can give you all of the surprising details. There is another advantage to the 450SEL that deserves your thought. Retained value.

As you'd expect, year after year, Mercedes-Benz has achieved an unparalleled record in this vital test. Based on the average official used car prices over the past five years alone, Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than any other make of luxury car made in America. Any other make.

Given the extraordinary attributes of the 450SEL, it seems only logical that this car should enjoy remarkable resale value indeed.

When you buy a Mercedes-Benz 450SEL, you do unto others—magnificently—as you would have them do unto you. The 450SEL Sedan is a very special world unto itself. For you...for every passenger. Contact your Mercedes-Benz Dealer. A convincing demonstration drive is easy to arrange.

The device pictured will be used to check the quality of welds joining pieces of superconducting wire into a 215-ton magnet at the Lab.

Marvin Hamstad (left), LLL mechanical engineer, and Bob Patterson, LLL mechanical technician, show how they calibrate an instrument used to detect the sound of defective material. When the pencil lead breaks against the metal plate, stress against the plate is removed. The release causes an inaudible sound which allows for adjustment of the testing equipment.

The first day and a half of the conference this week was used to prepare papers the study group hopes will convince private industry the technique merits a closer look.

"This type of monitoring device can save lives, save time and save money," Tatro says.

Gravel and water

There is however knowledge that 400,000 acre-feet of water which could be stored in all of the depleted pits "represents a tremendous resource in itself ... enough to supply all of this basin's water needs for five years."

Whatever complex of uses results for those 400,000 acres (and garbage disposal is already one idea that's been eliminated) the challenge of the pits shapes up as one of the Valley's major land-use debates over the next several decades.

Save Water but keep up the shrubs

PLEASANTON — Go ahead and conserve water, but don't let your yard plants die. Acting City Manager Alan Campbell told the public Monday night.

Water consumption dropped 46 per cent in May, Campbell told the council. That's because it rained a lot in May and in this city water consumption seems directly related to the weather and yard watering.

Having noticed some dead plants around the city, Campbell said that he wants residents to know there are other ways to save water and they shouldn't skimp on water for their shrubs, flowers and trees.

Second Rotary concert seen

LIVERMORE — On the heels of a rain soaked Mel Tillis concert which only netted $5,000 for new stadium lights, the Livermore Rotary Club has announced plans for a teenagers' rock concert July 30.

Suggested to the Rotary by Granada High School graduating senior Joe Cassidy, the Saturday afternoon concert will be a "mild rock" affair at the Livermore High School football field. Cost will be $5 in advance and $6 at the gate.

The Rotary hopes for a sellout of the 6,000 capacity facility to pull in $31,800. Estimated costs are $11,300.

The event has been approved by the school district and city police.

Cassidy and classmate Joe Wujcik are heading the planning efforts, according to Dr. John Shirley of the Rotary's stadium light committee.

"This time we will have a lot more kids involved and they feel it has a lot of potential," said Shirley, noting local youngsters have wanted a concert here for several years.

Although the concert will be "kept mild," said Shirley, "special event" police will be on hand to prevent any unruly individuals from spoiling everyone else's fun.

Arrangements are now being made to select bands for the concert.

Tickets will be sold at record stores and other outlets and student workers will be handling publicity for the event. Many of the Tillis Concert committee members have volunteered to continue the fund raising efforts for the lights which are slated for Robert Livermore Stadium. That project has been an ongoing Rotary effort for the past three years. The entire project cost is estimated at $85,000, but the Rotarians still need another $18,000 for the light poles and lights.

Let me outta here

on Sports

Mike Siani remembers the score, the turning events, crushing blows, great catches, the lop-sided strength of the winner and hero's welcome the Oakland Raiders received after handcuffing Minnesota in Super Bowl XI last January.

But don't bet a nickel he enjoyed it. Mike Siani sat and waited anticipated and wondered while Raider starters battled and bruised their out-matched Viking foes with a plunging straight-ahead running attack, precision passing and unbuckling defense.

Everything seemed to be working to perfection for Oakland on that sunny Sunday in Pasadena — except Siani's senses. Long before Oakland's final contest, the Villanova grad sensed his value to the Raiders had long been spent. He sensed being traded. He sensed reaping all-pro honors in a new uniform with a new team. But that day never came. He wanted out. And still does.

Mike Siani

"By the time I got, in, (Raider coach John) Madden was yelling and screaming to keep the ball on the ground. At the same time I was telling (Raider back-up quarterback) Mike Rae to put the ball in the air," joked Siani.

"The offensive linemen were tired by that time and didn't want to pass block, so we ran out the clock."

Siani's journey into football's big leagues has been long and winding since his inception. Painfully bruising at times, he often looks back with a feeling of dismay. A proven veteran, cast as a sudden starter during his rookie and second seasons, Siani now wants a second chance that may never come.

"I really don't think they'll trade me," noted the clutch receiver, who lost his starting assignment to Cliff Branch in 1974 after tearing a hamstring. "I have three more years on my contract and the only way I can get out of it is if they trade me. I've had my agent try to get a trade but apparently (managing general partner) Al Davis won't budge because he realizes he's always got me as a steady back-up and ready to step in."

"I still feel that I can play with the best of them and given the chance, could become as good as Freddy (Biletnikoff). Everybody is saying that Freddy is getting old and tired and that I can take over when he leaves. Hell, the way he's playing Freddy could play for another five years."

"I was a starter for the Oakland Raiders for two seasons, I'm sure I can start for somebody else."

It might take a cannon to blow Freddy Biletnikoff, perhaps the most feared pass catcher in the National Football League, out of his position and Branch has been delighting home crowds with circus catches as an all-pro receiver the last three seasons. Where does that leave Siani?

"Sitting on the bench," he moaned. "Right now in my career I feel I shouldn't be sitting on the bench — even if it is for the World Champion Oakland Raiders. I think it's more frustrating sitting on the bench with the champs than getting a chance to play somewhere else. You really don't get too much satisfaction being on a winning team if you don't contribute."

During his heyday, his rookie season in 1972 and following year, Siani ranked in the class of the NFL's most prominent receivers. During his second season, he led the Raiders in receiving yardage with 742. He hauled in 45 receptions, second behind Biletnikoff and sixth in the AFC and had productive days of 116 yards on three catches against Denver, and 111 more in games with Minnesota and Pittsburgh.

In 1972, the sure-handed Siani was one of five finalists for AFC Rookie of the Year honors and named to several all-rookie teams. No thanks to injuries and stardom of others, Siani's blossoming career of yesterday has plummeted since.

The Raiders realized his value and acknowledge it with a handsome annual salary. But Siani, who's paid like a starter, knows money can't buy endless hours of exercise, long days in training camp and new kneecaps.

"It's always nice to get the check every week," he offered. "People say 'hey you're getting paid every week. Why don't you just sit on the bench and be happy.' People just don't realize how much you have to put into training camp and work everyday. What's the sense of practicing everyday and going to training camp if you're not going to use your skills on Sunday. There's no sense to it as far as I'm concerned."

"We want people to come down and see us," he said, giving his new franchise a plug. "Even if it is just to come in to see the ring. I don't wear it in the store but I'll show it to them as long as they don't run away with it."

Even with the frustration felt daily, Siani still likes the distinction of being one of the best in his business by virtue of the flashy sparkler on his finger.

"You think of all the guys who have played football through the entire year, of all the teams, and how many times the Raiders have come so close and frustration we've felt," said Siani, pulling the ring out of his pant pocket. "I've been with the team for five years now and it's so satisfying to finally get there. It's the dream of every ball player to be on a Super Bowl team. It has for me. It's been worth the five years and it's a great feeling."

NY digs up some 'Seattle' dirt

NEW YORK — Seattle Slew's ownership, which apparently raced the Triple Crown-winning colt in violation of state rules, is being investigated by the New York State Racing and Wagering Board.

The principal subject of the probe is Dr. James Hill, a Garden State, N.Y., equine veterinarian who joined with Mickey Taylor in forming Wooden Horse Investments for the purchase of a $17,500 yearling which turned out to be Seattle Slew.

John Dailey, director of racing for the Racing and Wagering Board, said Slew had been raced in apparent violation of state rules from last summer through the Wood Memorial in April because Hill, Taylor, trainer Billy Turner and others were not licensed owners in New York.

Further, Dailey said, the investigation is trying to determine whether Hill willfully misrepresented the New York regulation which bars practicing thoroughbred veterinarians from also owning horses which compete in the state.

There is also a probe underway to sort out the complex financial arrangement under which Hill is part-owner of Slew. Karen L. Taylor, Mickey's wife, is the listed owner of Seattle Slew.

A spokesman for the board said it met June 8 to issue a temporary owner's license to Hill, who several weeks earlier had surrendered his veterinary license to practice at New York tracks. Four days later, Seattle Slew won the Belmont Stakes to become the first unbeaten winner of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown, tacking it onto victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

The spokesman denied the purpose of the meeting was to decide what penalty, if any, would be assessed. "The inquiry hasn't been completed and won't be for perhaps another week or two, so how could the board be deciding a penalty?" the spokesman said. The penalty could range from a reprimand to a fine to suspension.

Hill told Newsday, the Garden City, N.Y. newspaper: "There was absolutely no unethical practice. We have given them the information they asked for. My record in this business has been a damned good one and as far as I'm concerned, let the chips fall where they may."

A board spokesman refused comment on Wednesday's New York Post report that New York Gov. Hugh Carey intervened to prevent the possible barring of Seattle Slew from the Belmont Stakes.

Newsday also reported that Kentucky's racing steward, Keene Daingerfield, said the owners of Seattle Slew also had been "in technical violation" of racing rules there when the colt won the Derby at Churchill Downs May 7. Daingerfield said, at the request of Kentucky racing officials, Seattle Slew's owners filed additional information May 18, bringing them into compliance and no action against them was planned in Kentucky.

Cards beat Giants

SAN FRANCISCO — Garry Templeton drove in the go-ahead run with a single while Keith Hernandez added a two-run double as the St. Louis Cardinals scored three runs in the seventh to break a 6-6 tie and beat the San Francisco Giants, 9-6, last night at Candlestick Park.

Reliever John Urrea, who stopped a Giant rally cold in the fifth, picked up his second win in five decisions. Reliever Randy Moffitt gave up all three runs in the seventh and dropped his record to 1-4 before a crowd of 32,041.

The Giants chased Cardinal starter Pete Falcone off the mound in the third inning by streaking to a short-lived 4-0 lead.

After Marc Hill's two-run homer in the second inning — his third of the season — gave San Francisco a 2-0 advantage, the Giants received consecutive singles from Rob Andrews, Derrel Thomas and Bill Madlock in the third to plate another run and send Falcone to the showers in favor of Clay Carroll.

Carroll escaped trouble by allowing only one more run, that coming on an bases-loaded infield ground out by Darrell Evans.

The Cardinals quickly gapped the deficit by scoring six runs in the fourth and knocking Giants starter Bob Knepper out of the box.

Hector Cruz doubled and Ted Simmons immediately followed with a towering home run, his eighth of the year, clearing the left field seats and cutting the SF lead to 4-2.

Keith Hernandez singled, infield, off Knepper's glove to set up Ken Reitz' double off the right field wall which scored Hernandez and sent Knepper into the clubhouse in favor of knuckleballer Charlie Williams.

Walks to Mike Anderson and Bake McBride, sandwiched around a sacrifice bunt loaded the bases for Jerry Humphrey's ground rule double that gave the Cards a 5-4 lead.

Garry Templeton's infield single drove in the sixth run, but Williams' got Cruz to hit into a line drive double play to shortstop Tim Foli, who caught the shot and threw to Madlock at third to double off Humphrey.

Singles by Jack Clark and Willi McCovey and a walk to Evans loaded the bases in the fifth as the Giants came back to tie the score at 6-6.

Foli plated the first run when his ground ball to second baseman Mike Tyson and subsequently relay to shortstop Templeton was misplayed. Templeton, who missed tagging the bag at second, was charged with an error.

Hill's third rbi of the night, on a sacrifice fly to center, tied the score at 6-6, but pinch hitter Gary Thomasson fanned and Foli was thrown out stealing to end the inning.

Mets 6, Braves 5 — John Stearns delivered the tie-breaking run with an eighth-inning ground out to give New York the victory.

Bruce Boicclair walked, went to third on Ed Kranepool's single to right, then scored the go-ahead run on Stearns' bounce to short.

Boicclair homered for the Mets in the third, his second of the year, following a double by Lenny Randle.

A's wheel, deal, trip

SEATTLE — The Oakland A's scrapped back again and again, but after 10 innings last night in Seattle, they were no better off than a 4-4 tie with the upstart Mariners at the Kingdome.

Before the game, the A's insured that veteran outfielder Willie Crawford, cast off by the Giants before playing a single game in Candlestick Park, would indeed play in the Bay Area this season.

At deadline, that was the only trade Oakland had completed, though Charlie Finley kept the long distance flying all night in an effort to further shore up his patchwork ball club.

Pleasanton's Paul Mitchell, demoted all the way to the AA Chattanooga Lookouts, was anxiously awaiting word of a deal that would get him away from the A's organization (for a closer look at Mitchell's situation, see tomorrow's Times Sports), saying, "If I don't get traded, I don't know what I'll do. It'll crush me if I have to stay down here all season."

Seaver to Reds

Star pitcher Tom Seaver, dubbed The Franchise for his ten years of premium performance, was traded by the New York Mets to the Cincinnati Reds, the Associated Press reported last night.

The Reds, two-time defending world champions, will be giving up four players to get Seaver, regarded the best in his craft over the course of the past decade. The new Mets will be pitcher Pat Zachry, infielder Doug Flynn and top minor league prospect Steve Henderson, an outfielder.

AP also learned that a fourth player would be included in the deal, but it is not known who he is or whether he is a major or minor leaguer.

The Reds announced a major news conference for

This time, the Astros will get 23-year old San Jose Missions outfielder Dennis Walling, who is currently on the sidelines with a broken arm. Walling saw some action with the A's last September.

A's owner Finley was also faced with the problem of what to do with Doc Medich, the right-handed pitcher with a 5-2 record who said Tuesday night, "Charlie has 24 hours to sign me or trade me."

Medich threatened to leave the team — he's scheduled to begin his residency as an orthopedic surgeon in Pittsburgh this October — if not satisfied by Finley; however he suited up last night.

Rangers 6, Indians 0 — Mike Marshall, Adrian Devine and Darold Knowles combined on a four-hit shutout as Texas handed Cleveland its fourth loss in succession.

Brewers 6, Orioles 2 — Don Money capped Milwaukee's six-run second inning with a two-run homer and Jim Slaton and Sam after their game last night, presumably to announce the trade. The Mets were expected to do the same.

Zachry was co-rookie of the year last season with fellow hurler Butch Metzger, but has stumbled to a 3-7 record with a 5.04 earned run average as opposed to his 14-7, 2.74 stats of a year ago. Flynn was batting .250 heading into last night's contest after hitting .283 in '76.

As the midnight PDT trade deadline approached, however, there were rumors that the deal had been cancelled, perhaps by the commissioner.

In another trade, the Texas Rangers sent veteran infielder Jim Fregosi to the Pittsburgh Pirates in exchange for utilityman Ed Kirkpatrick.

Diablo pro serves up the yucks

Tennis Shorts

Vic the Pro

Vic Everson, hands resting casually in his tennis shorts' pockets, stands cool, alert and ready to listen.

He owns all the mannerisms of a young sophisticated country club type, making a decent income while enjoying the life as a tennis pro. His locks are fashionably trimmed, a stylish moustache droops over his lips, dark shades hide his eyes and a floppy white hat covers his brow.

In a word, Vic is nonchalant.

Friends view him as a charmer, easy-going, friendly, persuasive, witty, yet often mistakable, destructive and infallible.

"Vic isn't perfect; he makes mistakes," admits longtime Diablo Country Club tennis pro Dick Overstreet, who's been watching Everson's every move since the first of the year.

Overstreet will tell you Vic Everson is a character, and that's no spoof. He's a make-believe, fictional soul who joins students Betty Bouffant, Mona, Rocky — yes indeed a talking ball machine, and speaking tennis courts and balls in a wild new comic strip ready to hit the presses.

That is, if the strip's owners — Overstreet, his business partner, Les Hansen and Diablo tennis assistant Greg Goggin — can push it on the market. So far, the trio have wheeled and dealed with one East Coast syndicate and more are expected to follow suit shortly.

Each of the characters are federally copyrighted, designed by a ghost artist while the strip is signed by a fictitious name "because we didn't want to put down three," said Overstreet. "We've got about 125 strips made," he offered. "We all really enjoy doing it. Now we're trying to sell it to syndicates."

Goggin originally created the strip, and hammered away on each character's traits for over a year before asking Overstreet and Hansen to chip in their talents. The latter pair both have an artistic background and are discovering almost daily a unique knack for putting the game's odd moments down on paper.

"Greg is really a comic freak," explained Overstreet, who has been working on the strip since January, "and came with the idea while Les and I have done illustrated articles for magazines. The three of us come up with the ideas, sketch them out and hand them over to the artist."

A hobby of sorts, the three tennis buffs depict everyday circumstances in the strip with a touch of instructional flavor. But 'Vic, the Pro', stands clear as the star of the show.

"Basically though, the whole strip is not a tennis pro and the funny things that happen to him," noted Overstreet. "Because that would probably only be funny to other tennis pros. It's about tennis itself."

Russ is alma mater bound

Russ Critchfield has resigned as basketball coach at San Ramon High School and will become an assistant coach at the University of California in Berkeley.

Critchfield, who did an outstanding job for the Wolves this year, returns to his alma mater, where he still holds seven school records.

Critchfield was out of town and unavailable for comment and UC officials refused to speak until the official announcement, which came early this morning.

The popular young coach worked for Cal head coach

Dick Edwards for one season as an assistant and was the assistant coach at San Diego State during the 1975-76 season. That year the Aztecs won the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title.

Critchfield also coached at Salesian High in Richmond for three years and compiled a 56-24 record in the tough Catholic Athletic League and also spent a season at the helm of the San Mateo Suns of the Western Basketball Association.

He will replace Dick Davey at Cal. Davey accepted a position at the University of Santa Clara, where the top big man in Northern California, Mark McNamara, will be going in the fall.

As in Critchfield's days, the Bears rely on a small guard for much of their offense. That would be Gene Ransom, who is only 5-9 but is one of the top guards on the coast. Critchfield, who was listed at 5-10 during his collegiate days, averaged well over 20 points in his last two seasons at Cal and was the mainstay of the Bear offense.

Although San Ramon's record was less than spectacular this past season, the Wolves had one of the smallest teams in the league and still had a shot at the playoffs going into the final East Bay Athletic League game.

One reason that Critchfield is leaving is reportedly the dearth of basketball talent at all levels of the San Ramon program. Even the junior highs that feed San Ramon lack outstanding talent and Critchfield believes that a really successful program at San Ramon is years away.

Critchfield had a fling at pro ball with the Oakland Oaks in 1968-69 but returned to coaching in 1970.

Sullivan now a 49er

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco 49ers announced Wednesday the National Football League club has purchased the contract of quarterback Pat Sullivan from the Chicago Bears.

At the same time, said General Manager Joe Thomas, the club waived third-string quarterback Marty Domres.

The move leaves the 49ers with three veteran quarterbacks: Jim Plunkett, Scott Bull and Sullivan.

Sullivan was the winner of the 1971 Heisman Trophy at Auburn University and was chosen in the second round NFL draft by the Atlanta Falcons in 1972. He played four years with Atlanta and played out his option in 1975.

He was signed by the Washington Redskins but cut by them in preseason training and sat out the '76 season.

Chicago signed him as a free agent in March of this year, but later the Bears made a trade which brought them quarterback Mike Phipps from Cleveland and also drafted Vince Evans as a rookie from USC.

The announcement came on the eve of the first veterans' camp of the season to be held by Coach Ken Meyer. Forty-eight veterans, including Sullivan, were to report Wednesday night for physicals and on Thursday to report to the 49ers' Redwood City training camp, where they will begin a three-day session with Meyer and his staff. — Associated Press

Dining out

Robbers rile CC diners

Bandits dealt Contra Costa diners a rank injustice Sunday holding up two restaurants that deserved better.

Early in the morning a burglar with a taste for booze pilfered $1,136 from El Charro Restaurant in Lafayette, leaving behind a broken, empty liquor bottle on the table.

That night an armed robber stalked into Casa Orinda and forced the bartender to place $1,500 in a paper sack, and for a finale, took the bartender's wallet.

Now really, why do thugs pick places like this? If they'd only check with those who dine out, we could supply a list of suitable restaurants for holdups. After all, they've been holding us up for years under the guise of continental cuisine.

But not El Charro. Leave that one alone. It serves Margaritas that are an icy, frothy blast before dinner.

And certainly don't knock over Casa Orinda again. It is a vanishing Bay Area breed, an honest grownup dinner house without a lot of nonsense.

For starters, Casa Orinda (in Orinda a block from the Orinda Theatre) has no theme. It's not a fern and bevelled-glass menagerie, nor are the menus cut-out caricatures of Lewis and Clark or Mao Tse Tung.

A front lounge features an antique gun collection, and most of the paintings are wild west last roundup style, holdovers from a time when Casa Orinda was a family-styled fried chicken house. The chicken was excellent and is still on the menu.

But the men and women who serve meals are dressed in traditional black and white, no Disney costumes or con-skin caps.

Casa Orinda's menu has moved from old meat and potatoes to a pseudo-continental flavor. There are several Italian entrees plus a variety of pastes. Most important, there are no gimmicks, meals aren't cooked in your shoe or served skewered on a Sumari sword.

A good starter is fried zucchini, which underscores the restaurant's mode of operation. It is done in a heavy batter, crisped almost too much, and laden with Parmesan cheese. Other houses will serve a more delicate zucchini, perhaps more tender, and in a lighter batter. The flavor here is good, however, and the dish is hard to resist. Salad with house vinegar - and - oil dressing is no subtlety, the vinegar produces a wince and beads of perspiration on the forehead. It is sweet torture for this purest of dressings.

Soup, minestrone is standard is average, but part of the complete dinner.

A number of pasta choices are available from cannelloni to traditional spaghetti. If one accepts the tenet that restaurants can't prepare spaghetti like your Italian grandmother, Casa Orinda's can be characterized commercially good.

Entrees are hard to top, even if your grandmother was born on the Pope's doorstep.

Veal Dore is the most popular, according to Casa Orinda staff. It is thinly sliced veal with zucchini slivers and done in a light brown sauce based in wine.

Breast of Capon Dore is similar, with thin strips of the breast done with the zucchini and same sauce.

Not so satisfying is an occasional house special, Veal Neapolitan, two veal medallions topped with eggplant slices. The sauce is akin to veal parmigiana and is good. On the last visit, however, the veal was tough and stringy and bore an unkindly resemblance to the frozen patties institutional - wholesalers feature.

Next to the aforementioned veal and capon dishes, Petrale is Casa Orinda's most requested dish — and perhaps its best. The generous portion of white fish is tender, but doesn't break into millions of tiny time capsules like the inside of a cold pill.

It also adheres to a fine line in taste, mild enough for amateur fish eaters, yet with enough distinction for those who relish seafood.

The Petrale is served with a white wine sauce that is tart, and excellent. Unlike many seafood adornments, its purpose is not to camouflage the fish's flavor.

Complete dinners here range from $6 to $10, reasonable prices for the amount of food, and the quality.

In the age of dining gimmickry, it's worth it just to sit down at a table not fashioned after Grizzly Adams' kitchen.

Franco
says:

Why don't we declare one week a year "Restaurant Appreciation Week?" Let's all go out to our favorite eating place, especially where the personnel has been nice to us and our family through the years. We in the industry are a special kind of breed ... a bartender is a psychiatrist, marriage counselor, prize fighter, lover, referee and mixologist. A waitress has to be a mother, babysitter, cleaning woman, accountant, cashier and hostess. The manager continues to smile and be courteous and try to solve many problems for too many people, and although he loves people, many times his reward is a smiling ulcer ... I would like to congratulate Juanita Burrow, owner of Red Carpet in Danville, for receiving a great award for being the seventh most successful real estate organization among the more than 700 offices in the national chain ... Great Honor to a Great Lady! School is over so plan once a week to take your family out for dinner and don't forget FRANCO at the corner of SAN RAMON VALLEY BOULEVARD and OLD CROW CANYON ROAD. ## Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: After a divorce, this is my second marriage. My husband's first. The first year or so were fine, but now we have a problem — namely my daughter. She has just turned 15, has all the physical attributes, and can't seem to stay away from her stepfather. Though it embarrassed him at first, he accepted her cuddling and curling up in his lap and daughterly kisses as a cute sign of affection. I guess I did, too. Lately, though, he seems to be enjoying them more and I'm afraid that something may happen. I'm also livid — with him for acting like an old fool and certainly with her for such outrageous behavior. Where do I turn? — K.W.

DEAR K.W.: The first thing you should turn is your daughter's bottom up and apply a few well-aimed swats. You don't need a Lolita at this point in your new marriage.

It's quite possible your daughter's carrying — on is a ploy to draw your attention to her rather than a play for your new husband. She may feel that you are not as close as you had been. Divorce can be unsettling enough to a child but the introduction of a new father or mother figure in the home also offers a traumatic time of adjustment.

Perhaps your husband isn't aware of just how close he is skirting danger — on more than one front. Aside from the trouble his "cuteness" with your daughter is causing at home, there are laws that take a dim view of men fooling around with underage girls.

Let your displeasure be known, loud and clear. If that brings no response then perhaps you should consider sending your daughter away to a boarding school or on a long visit to relatives. Either way, the two should not be left alone.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: The man I am planning to marry had one of those so-called civilized divorces. It's so darned civilized that he and his wife still travel in the same circles, we run into her and her date on many occasions, and he even insists that we sometimes double-date. Needless to say, the situation has me a nervous wreck. The woman is nice enough but I resent the intimacies they share that exclude me. Even more, I feel that I'm always being held up to comparison when we're with their mutual friends. I don't want to cause any rift between them, but I do feel that we should be developing our own life and friends. — M.G.

DEAR M.G.: Start developing, and get rid of your negative attitude.

Your man and his ex may have had a civilized divorce but it seems they're carrying it to ridiculous lengths. It's nice that you can accept her and their friends, but you certainly shouldn't be expected to fit into their old routines.

Have a serious talk with this intended mate. Obviously their marriage is over but the involvement is not. If she is forcing these meetings, probably she hasn't gotten over her feelings and if he allows it to continue it's apparent that he shares similar views.

I don't know how long you've known this man but it not infrequently happens that a man will rebound quickly from divorce in an attempt to arouse the jealousy of his former wife. His love may be just as sincere for you, but he is using your relationship to demonstrate to her that the separation has not hurt his spirit or pride.

Try to plan more time with him alone without all those relics from his past. If he goes along, you're ahead. If he balks, it might be best to hold off on any marriage plans until he gets his priorities straight.

SIDE GLANCES

by Gill Fox

"Sorry, sir, but our Summer Wine Tour of France is fully booked!"

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read in your column that anyone who had trouble swallowing should see a doctor for an examination. I went promptly to the University Hospital for examination and X rays.

They took a rubber tube and expanded the esophagus. That opened up the tube that goes to my stomach. Now I can eat anything I desire and I don't have any stoppage as before. I was starving to death.

I don't know what caused it as I do not smoke. I am well into my 70s.

DEAR READER — Thank you for sharing your experience with other column readers. I am glad you were so successful in obtaining relief of your obstruction of the esophagus.

The esophagus tube that connects to the stomach is sometimes constricted at its lower end, just before the stomach. When the constriction becomes severe it may prevent food from entering the stomach.

Some of these obstructions are caused by the irritating effects of the acid-digestive juices leaking backward — out of the stomach into the lower esophagus. After years of this the lower esophagus is scarred and contracted. This is one reason why a person with esophageal reflux problems — which may or may not be associated with a hiatal hernia of the stomach through the diaphragm — needs to follow a good preventive program.

I would like to emphasize again that difficulty in swallowing can be a sign of cancer of the esophagus. Anyone with this symptom must have an examination of the esophagus.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to learn more about the disease amyloidosis. I have a close relative who has this disease, and as a result his kidneys are almost deteriorated. He has to have dialysis two to three times a week.

How will this disease affect other parts of the body? The doctors say he will never be a candidate for a kidney transplant. Will there be a continual decline or can he hope to go back to work?

DEAR READER — Amyloidosis refers to an accumulation of amyloid in the tissues. Amyloid is a starch-like material of insoluble proteins or protein-starch combination.

As the starchy material builds up inside the cells they lose their normal function. It is usually a complication of some other disease — to give one of many examples, tuberculosis.

The amyloid can settle in the cells of the kidney and render the kidneys ineffective.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW DOES A CRICKET MAKE ITS CHIRPING SOUND?"

ELAINE YOUSSEY
AUSTIN, TX

A. THE MALE CRICKET MAKES ITS CHIRPING CALL TO THE FEMALE BY RUBBING THE ROUGH UNDERSIDES OF ITS WINGS TOGETHER.

Crickets are a jumping insect related to grasshoppers. Seldom seen during the daytime, the cricket's cheerful chirping song is a familiar night sound in summer.

Actually, the cricket doesn't "sing." It fiddles — and only the male cricket fiddles. He fiddles his tune to attract the female cricket.

To make its chirping notes, the cricket holds its wings above its back and vigorously rubs their filelike surfaces together, much like a violinist produces a note on a violin by drawing the bow across a string. The cricket's wings also act as sounding boards, amplifying the sound.

The female cricket listens with "ears" that are not located on her head, but with little hearing patches on her forelegs.

In many countries, a cricket living in the house is considered to be a sign of good luck. Crickets love warmth, and are often found living in houses, hiding in cracks near a fireplace or behind a stove.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may take on new responsibilities where you earn your bread and butter. Unless you treat them seriously, things could go awry.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to come on too strong today with one you've recently met, or you'll chase this person away before he gets to know you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In family matters today, try to keep things on an equitable basis between you and your mate. If either is overshadowed, the other will be angry.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You tend to spark prematurely today. Take care not to open your mouth and spoil something which could be very good for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a possibility you could suffer a loss today because of the rash judgment of a business associate. Eye closely any partnership activities.

The student gasped when he saw the Professor go up with dummy's ace of spades at trick one. Here was a simple hand with success sure if either of two finesses were going to work. But here was the great expert refusing to take one of them!

The Professor led a club to his ace at trick two, cashed his ace and king of diamonds, noted the fall of the queen from West, entered dummy with a trump, discarded his last spade on the jack of diamonds that had become a lucky winner, lost the heart finesse but made his slam.

"How did you know that the spade finesse was wrong?" asked the student.

"I didn't," replied the Professor. "I couldn't lose the hand if the spade finesse was on and by refusing it I gave myself a slight extra chance." That is just what the Professor had done. Give West the king of spades and the hand is cold without the queen of diamonds dropping because, after ruffing out dummy's jack of diamonds, South will lead a spade. If West holds the king he will be caught in an end play.

Dublin says 'thanks'

Yesterday was a time when the parents and students at Murray School, Dublin, paused to say "Thanks" to some of their most loved staff. Above, PTA president Kathy Soriano pins a "PTA HONORED ME" ribbon on custodian Cliff Rabello, described as a "super, super guy." She also awarded him honorary lifetime PTA membership. Below, retiring teacher Farris Keifer shows off a yarn-decorated "slate" made by some of her children; behind her stand Jacki Soriano, Robyn Isaacson, Chuck Palmer, Darren Brown. Both staff members also received ceramic plaques made by the children. (Times photos by Mike Macor)

Valleyites seek hosts

Two local couples are signing up Valley families to take part in the annual "Youth for Understanding" exchange student program. Mr. and Mrs. M.W. Mote of 324 Adams Way, Pleasanton and Mr. and Mrs. Duane Dewees of 66 Hazel-nut Court, San Ramon, are local workers for the nationwide firm headquartered in Ann Arbor, Mich. They're looking for families willing to "adopt" a foreign student for six months or a year. Host families provide room and board for the student, making him or her part of the family and of their daily lives. The student's family takes care of medical insurance, clothing and spending money.

Michell plan extended

Parents favor fundamentals

LIVERMORE — The conservative "fundamental" program begun this year at Michell School will continue for at least three more years and may be expanded in the fall.

With trustee Gail Sidhu dissenting, school board members voted Tuesday night to accept Michell School principal Joe Mirci's 67-page report which said most of the parents and teachers in the new program liked it. As part of the same motion — expanded by trustee Jim Davis from simple acceptance of the report — they agreed to give the program an additional three-year life span and to ask Superintendent of Schools Leo Croce for a feasibility report on using Michell's expected three empty classrooms for additional fundamental classes next fall. Pupils from other parts of the district who wanted to be in a fundamental program could attend one of those classes, according to Davis's plan.

Trustee Manuel Prado and Superintendent Croce pointed out other popular alternative programs in the district also have waiting lists but have not been allowed either special funding or special privileges.

Michell teacher Mary Hurdlow, who is transferring to another school next fall, asked the board not to continue the separate fundamental program because there has been no real difference in what fundamental teachers have been doing from what they used to do before they were called "fundamental."

"The only real differences at Michell this year were those which always exist because there are different children and different teachers in every classroom," she asserted.

Her comments were borne out by principal Mirci, who said, "The programs probably don't differ that much."

Mirci confessed to trustee Jan Brice, who asked whether the fundamental school had guidelines, goals and objectives for its first year: "Our objective was to survive, really."

Pressed for some type of comparison or evaluation of the experimental program, Superintendent Croce said, "I want to avoid a direct comparison. I don't think either program (fundamental or the old middle-of-the-road program newly dubbed 'basics-plus') is ready for

New future forecast for old 'inventions'

NEW YORK (AP) — Accustomed to finding tomorrow's innovations in the far out concepts of scientists, Americans might be surprised to learn that some of their newest products are coming from old ideas.

The dirigible is coming back.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., which never quite gave up on the notion of lighter-than-air flight, now foresees a growing market for airships.

The most pressing need for them, says Morris Jobe, president of Goodyear Aerospace Corp., is in providing the capability of lifting huge cargoes, such as power generating equipment and military tanks.

Helicopters are incapable of lifting such loads. A battle tank, for example, weighs 63 tons, whereas the most powerful U.S. helicopter now available can lift only 16 tons.

The answer: An airship supported by 2.5 million cubic feet of helium and four attached helicopters. The company is now working on a vehicle that would lift 75 tons straight up. It expects to have it within five years.

Windmill power is coming back.

General Electric and United Technologies share a contract from the National Aeronautics & Space Administration to design and build the largest windmill ever, a 15-story structure that might be the prototype of many more.

Some authorities believe a thriving industry could be in operation within 15 years, and that wind energy could supply up to 20 percent of electric power demand by the end of the century.

Water power is going to be redeveloped.

The popular myth is that most hydropower sites already have been developed. Nonsense, says Development & Resources Inc., headed by David Lilienthal, former chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority and first chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Lilienthal says there are thousands of sites for power development along small streams, canals, locks and the like, especially in the Northeast.

Such sites avoid environmental problems common to larger installations, he says. Furthermore, the dams often are in place, having been put there during the 19th century and then abandoned as big power utilities took over.

Reactivate them, he says, and a tremendous contribution would be made toward alleviating the nation's energy shortage.

Natural rubber might soon be cultivated domestically.

At present, the United States imports $500 million worth of rubber from Southeast Asia each year. But all along there has been growing wild in Texas the guayule bush, which provides near identical ingredients.

The National Research Council and the rubber companies are now experimenting with the idea that a world shortage of natural rubber might be averted in the 1980s by cultivating this long-neglected source of supply.

Sea farming is a growing business.

Throughout civilization, man has grown food crops on land. But perhaps the most bountiful supply, the fish in the waters, were left to develop haphazardly.

Aquafarming or aquaculture is now common on ponds in the Midwest and South. And some concerns have developed totally artificial breeding sites, in tanks through which food and oxygen are filtered.

Now some of the nation's big corporations are interested in mariculture, or the cultivation of marine life, such as salmon, lobster, shrimp and the like. Union Carbide already is in the business; Standard Oil (Indiana) is considering it.

By thinking simple another problem was solved.

The nation's superhighways are among the most dangerous of all places for pedestrians. Therefore, states and private companies long have sought effective communications devices for stranded motorists.

One big drawback to powered devices was vandalism. Furthermore, such methods were expensive and tended to suffer from downtime.

A small company, Solid State Technology, Inc., of Wilmington, Mass., solved the problem with an ingenious motorist aid call box that is batteryless and wireless, and because of so few parts, almost vandal-proof too. In fact, it reports vandals.

The device sends an electronic signal to a central point when a motorist activates it. And what supplies the power? The very act of pulling the lever to activate the device.

Remarkable how old is everything new.

Graduating seniors Scott Williford (left) of Livermore High School and Faye Graham of Granada High School are this year's recipients of the Eldred Chance Memorial Award scholarships of $150 each. The scholarship selection committee included Dr. James McFarland, past trustee of Livermore Valley Unified School District; Joe Michell (shown making the award to Williford), chairman and former superintendent of schools; Earl Duarte, retired Wells Fargo Bank vice president and manager, and Rich Buckley, son-in-law of the late Eldred Chance, pictured in the background.
